Vintage Poster Studies

This series deals with Railway Posters from around 1920.

They could be regarded as the ‘golden age’ of railway posters. This was when apparently the sun always shone on British tourest locations, which in turn were as glamerous as the Côte d’Azur!

The artist responsible for these nostalgic masterpieces include Frank Newbould, John Hassall and Terence Cuneo to name a few.

We shall endeavour to make studies of parts or all of these scenes, so as to gather understanding of key components in the composition of landscapes...and how to manage and manipulate a scene to best represent its complexity in a stylised and more time economic way.
